Painting Title: “The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse - After”

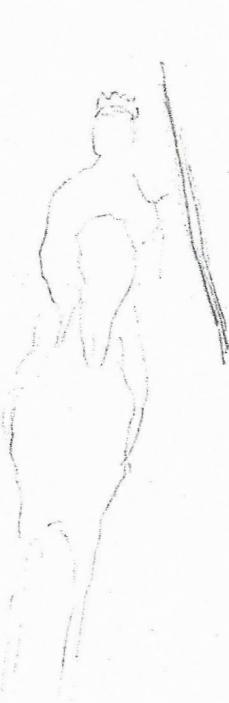

Medium: Watercolor

Place, Year Created: Apache Junction 2013

Artist's Comments: “Tells the story of how the horsemen are getting ready to go their separate ways. They are praying with eyes closed, even the horses. At the foot of each horseman is a symbol: the scales, a skeleton head, a crown and bow and arrow, and a sword.”

From the collection of: House (Artist)

Painting Title: “Primary Thoughts, Primary Colors”

Medium: Watercolor

Place, Year Created: California 1993

Artist’s Comments: “This is a picture of a Moulin Rouge woman. In the bottom left corner is a partial sheep and the face of an ogling man. It shows what she thinks of herself and what he thinks of her. I consider it one of my best. I like the way the colors blend.”

Painting Title: "Ulalume"

Medium: Oil

Place, Year Created: California 1981

Artist's Comments: "This Turneresque picture was awarded Best of Show. The idea is from Edgar Allan Poe's poem 'Ulalume':

"The skies were ashen and sober... down by the dank tarn... At the end of our path... a nebulous lustre was born... a miraculous crescent."

A man, mourning the death of his beloved Ulalume a year earlier, enters a dark, wet forest conversing with his Psyche. Although he becomes hopeful at the sight of the rising morning star Venus, depicted as a two-horned goddess, his mourning returns when he comes upon the tomb of his beloved.
